

Assault

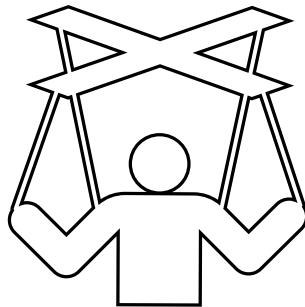

Kidnapping

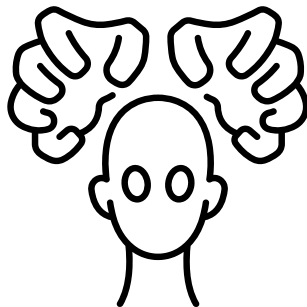

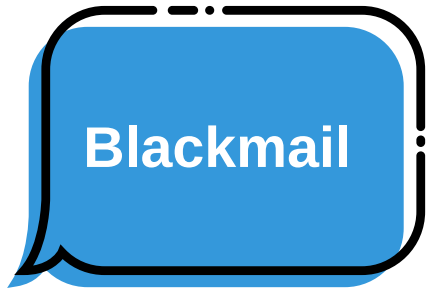

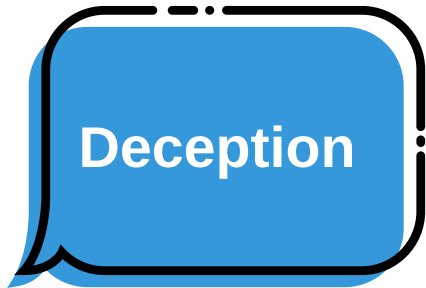

Manipulation

Fake job offers

Least Likely

Force, Fraud or Coercion?

Alex met their best friend while playing Call of Duty. They've never met in person, but they talk all the time. Alex's friend says that they'd like to meet Alex in person, but they can't afford it.

They also mention they know someone who made a lot of money selling pics of themselves online.

Force, Fraud or Coercion?

Alex saw an ad on craigslist for a modeling job,
but when they arrived they were informed that they would be taking nude photos to sell on the internet.

Force, Fraud or Coercion?

Alex was grabbed walking home from school and taken, then sold.

Force, Fraud or Coercion?

Alex sent a nude photo to their partner.

The partner says if Alex doesn't send more they will post it online.

Force, Fraud or Coercion?

Alex was told that if they don't do exactly as the person trafficking them says, then the trafficker will make Alex's younger siblings do it instead.

Force, Fraud or Coercion?

Alex's partner tells them that they love them so much they never want to leave them, but their rent is late and they might lose their apartment and have to break up.

The partner asks Alex to have sex with landlord in exchange for rent so they can stay together.

Force, Fraud or Coercion?

Alex has a new friend on social media.

This new friend likes all of Alex's posts and even compliments Alex's good looks on their photos.

The new friend asks Alex to meet up in person.

When Alex arrives they notice that their "friend" is not the same person as their profile picture.

Force, Fraud or Coercion?

Alex's friend gives Alex a ride to school every day. One day, Alex's friend tells Alex the rides aren't going to be free anymore and asks for favors that make Alex uncomfortable.

Alex really needs the ride because they live 5 miles from school and the family doesn't have a car, so Alex complies with the favors even though they don't feel comfortable.

Force, Fraud or Coercion?

An individual in the locker room takes a picture of Alex changing and sells the photo to their friends.

Force, Fraud or Coercion?

Alex has a family member that always takes Alex out for ice cream to “vent” about life. Alex tells their family member that they borrowed money from their parent and they don’t know how they will pay it back.

Alex’s family member tells Alex that they will give them the money if Alex takes swimsuit photos for them.